STARVING THEMSELVES TO BEAT THE TRUST.

A movement has been launched in St. Louis, followed up in other cities, whereby the members of organized labor and others who can be influenced to join them agree not to eat meat until prices are forced down. In other words, these laboring people have combined to starve themselves to fight the octopus. With them pork chops, veal cuts, rump roasts and ham and gravy are in the discard, and they will turn their appetites over to stewed beans and prunes, etc. And that is how the situation stands. If some of these same brave souls who are butting their heads against the solid wall of the trust had only taken good advice in the past and used their ballot to overthrow the party that furnishes the license to such corporations, through the high tariff, who knows but today we might be eating meat in plenty at half the cost. The way to get rid of the beef trust and all other trusts, if it is ever to be done at all, is to vote the party which supports this principle out of power, and the people have the votes. In the meantime, it is a case of take it or leave it at the trust price.

Will Editor Ellis of the Rusk Press-Journal stand for the announcement that the Rusk prison is now and hereafter to be a mere convict camp? Will he?

The Laymen's Missionary Movement is not intended altogether for the foreign field, but is also to be a stimulus to get home men into the church. It could operate to a good profit right here in this good old town.

We are worried right now with what we are going to do with all those railroads and interurbans that are coming to town; how to get them all housed and leading into the city and at the same time not block the streets and all that. It's a great problem, too.

People must be judged by their acts, and the fellow who continually harps on what he wants to do for his town or what he will do if given the chance but still does nothing, must not be taken too seriously. The chances are he is stringing you, and would do nothing except to get his selfish ends through. Town builders make their chances.

Candidate Colquitt says eloquently that he favors a home for indigent consumptives where they can be treated, and yet he is the staunch advocate of that institution that produces more squalor and contributes more to the cause of consumption and other ills than all other institutions and conditions combined—the saloon. With us a preventative beats a cure or treatment all to pieces.

Remember the Farmers' Institute to be held here on the 27th inst. Some prominent people will be here to speak and discuss farm questions with the county people, and the occasion should be one of value and importance. Among other topics that of good roads will be discussed, and this is a question in which we are all vitally interested. The Board of Trade should be well represented and be prepared to join in the discussion. Good roads in the county are of vital importance to both the town and county.

SUNFLOWER PHILOSOPHY.

(From the Atchison (Kan.) Globe.)

We have noticed that a man had rather brag on his kin than to board them.

The trouble with some men is that they not only yield to temptation, but hunt it up.

We seldom take much stock in a story to the effect that the case was such a pitiful one that the judge wept when he sentenced the culprit to the penitentiary.

So much attention is paid the college yell as to create the impression that students are being trained to earn a living after graduation by calling the cattle home.

So far as we have been able to find out, the only advantage in wearing false puffs and braids is that a woman can wash her hair these days without getting her head wet.

Did any man, when the barber holds a mirror to the back of his head and asks if the hair cut is O. K. ever have the nerve to say it wasn't? And could the barber help matters if he did?

DON'T GAMBLE, SAYS GATES

Great Plunger Gives Texas Pastors Information to Be Used in Sermons.

Galveston, Tex.—John W. Gates, the noted Wall street speculator, appeared in a new light at the Gulf District Methodist Episcopal conference in session at Port Arthur when he addressed a gathering of churchmen and laymen, warning them against speculation and all other forms of gambling.

The "Bet You a Million" plunger, who is probably the most famous speculator to go from the west and invade Wall street, delivered his warning with an earnest expression on his countenance and in slowly chosen words. He explained that he didn't mean anything personal, in addressing the preachers, but was merely suggesting a topic for sermons. He said:

John W. Gates.

"The man who speculates on futures or gambles for high stakes by any other means, becoming one day a pauper, the next day a millionaire, and again a pauper, is not happy. He burns up his strength and his life in a fever of excitement, and comes to his end without having ever really enjoyed himself.

"Happiness and contentment belong to the tiller of the soil, the mechanic, the merchant, who earn their money by labor and invest their savings wisely to provide themselves a home for their declining years. They always know just where they are and their lives are sweetened by a sense of security.

"I guess I know about as many stock and grain gamblers as does any man in the country. And I do not know one who risks any large percent of his fortune on the market who is what you would term a happy man.

"It is foolishness for a man to try to be a small gambler. If he has the habit, some time or other, he will make a big plunge. Then it's all over with him so far as having much joy in life is concerned. He will plunge again and again. He may grow wealthy or go broke, but the fever has him, and contentment is fled."

CHINA'S NEW ENVOY ARRIVES

Chang Tang Who Succeeds Wu Ting Fang Prepares for Great Campaign in Society.

Washington.—An important and significant change in the diplomatic circle will be the establishment of a new and imposing home by the new Chinese minister, Chang Tang, who has arrived in Washington. It will be independent of the official Chinese residence built some years ago on Nineteenth street. Mr. Wu's successor, who arrived here in time to take his place in the formal opening of the season New Year's day, has leased the home of the late Mrs. D. D. Colton on Connecticut avenue, just north of Dupont circle, and will occupy it with his family. The offices remain in their present quarters which also served as a home for Ministe Wu and his predecessors.

China maintains the largest staff of any legation in the United States, having at present no less than nine secretaries and attaches. This staff is likely under the new envoy to be still further increased. Mr. Chang Tang, who is accompanied by his wife and a large retinue of servants, came direct from Peking. He has served his country in Tibet and has made several visits to the United States. He is one of the progressives of the present government and likes society.

The establishment of a home in the smart residence district and his known desire to strengthen the bonds of friendship between his country and the United States is taken as evidence that China will enter into an active social campaign this winter in which the diplomatic circle will play a most conspicuous part.

To Live Right We Must Eat Right.

Man is beginning to pay attention to his food. Today we know that the body, the human engine, must be fed right; that its energies, like those of the steam engine, are determined by the fuel used, the food we eat.

Dr. Price's Algrain Food advertised in this paper, is the highest achievement of the food specialist, the crowning touch of the pioneer of the science of food products. The best foods are the cereals and Dr. Price's Algrain combines in ideal proportion on the hearts of wheat, oats, rice and barley, the staple of all great nations. Algrain food retains in the making the dietary elements essential to the building up of the human body. Algrain food scarcely needs further endorsement than the simple statement that it is the latest triumph of Dr. Price in the preparation of scientific food specialties. It is not only a highly nutritious product, but is the most palatable of breakfast foods and accessible alike to rich and poor. Ask your grocer for Dr. Price's Algrain Food, a combination of cereals. ## PROFIT BY OTHERS' EXPERIENCE

Gray Hair Restored

My hair was getting quite gray and falling out rapidly and I was troubled with a terrible itching of the scalp. My head was full of dandruff, which fell upon my clothes and kept me continually brushing it off. While on a visit to Rochester I heard of your Sage and Sulphur for the hair. I got a bottle and used it. A few applications relieved the itching, my hair stopped falling out and gradually came back to its natural color. It is now a nice dark brown color, soft, glossy and pliable. Several of my friends want to use it, and I want to know what you will charge me for six bottles of it.

MISS E. A. ROSS,
Sharon, Mercer Co., Pa.

Grew Hair on a Bald Head

For two or three years my hair had been falling out and getting quite thin until the top of my head was entirely bald. About four months ago I commenced using Sage and Sulphur. The first bottle seemed to do some good and I kept using it regularly until now I have used four bottles. The whole top of my head is fairly covered and keeps coming in thicker. I shall keep on using it a while longer, as I notice a constant improvement.
